Message from the Acting President Taiwan Association of Obstetrics and Gynecology

We extend our heartfelt thanks to Dr. Mark DeFrancesco, whose continued support and tireless efforts have made this high-level collaboration possible. Thanks to his dedication, the fourth America-Taiwan Joint Conference (AT4) once again brings together distinguished speakers for a rich and impactful exchange of knowledge.

This year's forum features a remarkable lineup of experts from both sides of the Pacific. We are especially honored to welcome the President of ACOG, Prof. Steven J. Fleischman, who will speak on the critical role of obstetrician-gynecologists in preventing and managing obesity. Dr. Fleischman also delivered an insightful lecture on osteoporosis at our Annual Meeting in Kaohsiung this past March.

We are equally privileged to have Prof. Camille Clare, ACOG President-Elect, who will address disparities in perinatal mental health and steps to achieve equity. Prof. Kimberley Sampson will present global strategies for labor and delivery care in patients with obesity, focusing on equity, preparedness, and respectful care in a changing world. Prof. Kfier Kuba will share current best practices and perspectives on the future of labor induction. Closing the conference, Prof. Chi-Chang Chang will speak on the evolution of minimally invasive gynecologic surgery-past, present, and future.

We are honored by the participation of ACOG Past Presidents serving as guest moderators:

Prof. Ted L. Anderson (2019-20),
Prof. Eva Chalas (2020-21),
Prof. Verda Hicks (2023-24), and
Prof. Stella Dantas, Immediate Past President (2024-25).

We also extend our gratitude to our esteemed local moderators and chairs:

Prof. Lian-Yu Chen (Deputy Director General of National Health Insurance Administration)
Prof. Chyi-Long Lee,
Prof. Jin-Chung Shih,
Prof. Ming-Chao Huang,
Prof. Jian-Pei Huang, and
Prof. Lin Kang,

whose contributions enrich this collaborative academic platform.

We warmly welcome all attendees, both in person and online, and encourage your active participation in this exciting academic event.

Prof. Wei-Chun Chang
Acting President
Taiwan Association of Obstetrics and Gynecology
